

MARCH IN THE TOILS.

Padrone Arrested for Keeping an Illegal Employment Bureau.

He Is a Prominent Politician and Member of Tammany Hall.

Get Men to Work in New Jersey and Would Not Return the Deposit.

James E. March, padrone and member of Tammany Hall, was arrested this afternoon by Officer Weinberg, of the City Hall police, and taken to the Mulberry street station pending his arraignment before Justice Taintor in the Tombs Police Court.

March is charged with keeping an employment bureau without a license in violation of chapter 49, Laws of 1888, as amended in 1891, which provides a penalty of $50 fine for each offense. The specific complaint against March was made by Matteo Nardello, a laborer, of 116 Mulberry street, in this city, and a warrant was issued by Justice Taintor for March's arrest this morning.

Nardello is one of a party of six Italians, for whom March agreed to procure work for $5 each. Nardello says that these men were walking up Mulberry street on Sunday morning last, when March's brother, Vincenzo, met them and asked them if they wanted work. They replied that they did, and he told them that James E. March was in a position to give it to them.

Vincenzo asked them to follow him. He led them to the bank and ticket and employment agency of his brother at 24 Marion street, where Nardello and the other men had a conference with James E. March. They say that March demanded $5 of them in return for procuring them work. He required that each one of them pay it down to have his name placed upon the eligible list of marchants. The men said the balance of $4 should be paid to him at the time they received their first payment from their employer.

This all the men agreed to, and March told them, furthermore, that if they were satisfied with the work he would give them each night one bank and he would return to them the deposit of $1 he had paid down.

March sent the men to work on the railroad, where their services were contracted at Edgewater, N. J. They worked all of one night, and found that the task imposed upon them was more than they could bear. They accordingly gave up the job and asked March to refund their money.

He made a pretense of charging them for the cost of their board, sleep in and refused to give them back a cent. They told their grievances to Antonio Palumbo, who was an employe of the Italian Consulate. Palumbo saw the City Marshal and advised the men to proceed against March and his agents.

March's license to keep an employment bureau expired in 1888, and since that time he has been doing a large and lucrative business. His padronage probably the most important in the city of New York, and his fortune is estimated at $50,000. He is a political follower of the notorious Vincenzo De Vito, who was arrested for selling fraudulent naturalization papers at his bank in March.

When a great parade of Italians was held last Autumn to ratify the nomination of James E. March as their leader, James E. March detracted all the expenses out of his own pocket. He was one of the chief marshals and Vincenzo De Vito was one of his aids.

LOVE-STRICKEN IN COURT. ESTHER'S VERDICT IS VOID. GEN. EARL IN MORE TROUBLE.

Cupid's Dart Hit Levy While His Wife Was Testifying.

He Is Put Under Bonds to Support Her, However.

Mrs. Kitty Levy, who was married a week ago to-day, in the City Court, Brooklyn, yesterday in her suit against her father-in-law, Moses Levy, for alienating her husband's affections, gained another victory in the Adams Street Police Court this morning when Justice Walsh decided that her husband, Sylvain, should pay her wife $10 a week, $500 a month, and $500 a year, for her services as a widow. When Mrs. Levy went on the stand she swore that she loved her husband dearly and sincerely, and that she had never been ill or anywhere else on earth with him.

Levy was then put on the stand and testified that he loved his wife, and that he had been deeply impressed by Congresswoman Wagner, on cross-examination.

"Since she was on the witness stand," he said, "I have never touched a tender spot in my heart, and for the first time in my life I have felt a sensation of love."

"Why did you not support your wife?"

"Asked Congressman Wagner,

"What occurred to me before," replied Levy.

After the couple were married, Levy said, they came to New York. The wife stayed at a hotel while he played the piano.

"It was not very pleasant for me," said the defendant, "but I had a good time."

Justice Walsh then brought the proceedings to a close with his decision of the case.

The wife said her father would probably furnish the $500 bonds this afternoon.

WOMEN TELL A QUEER TALE.

One of a Trio Detained at Ellis Island and Claims $30,000,000.

There are three women from Italy detained at Ellis Island who tell a strange story of their Antonia Maledi, who claimed they were to be married to the King of Italy.

She says she is a submarine heir to the property, which formerly belonged to her aunt, Maria Anna.

She says Giuseppe Berini, a Boston lawyer, sent her $300 to come to this country and to present her case to the Supreme Court.

Two other girls swore they had been duped by the same woman out of the $300,000 that the latter parted with $100. When he imposed the sentence Judge Moore said the prisoner was the meanest thief he had ever seen.

TEACHER BECOMES BLIND.

Decision in Mrs. Rice's Proceedings to Get Possession of Her Child.

In the babies' corpus proceedings brought by Mrs. Emma C. Rice to obtain possession of her three-year-old daughter Frances, now in the custody of the child's father, Ricardo W. Rice, Justice Ingraham of the Supreme Court, today decided that the child must remain in the care of the most beautiful defendant.

The Justice ordered that Mrs. Rice be allowed to see her daughter once each week at her residence, 47 West Twenty-third street.

The Justice also ruled that Mrs. Rice, who is said to be Superintendent of Public Instruction, is suing his wife for $100,000, should not be granted a divorce until he has paid $100,000 to his wife.

Among the guests expected are Capt. and Mrs. J. N. Miller, U. S. S. Vermont, Col. and Mrs. James Farney, U. S. Marine Corps, and Mrs. Louisa L. Marlewood, wife of Henry Smith, U. S. Marine Corps.

DON'T EXPECT HIM BACK.

Fugitive Sutherland's Friends Discredit a Rumor.

After Returning from Consulting a Specialist Her Eyesight Falls.

HACKENSACK, N. J., April 6.—Miss Adèle M. Krueger, who for the past four years has been in charge of the primary department of the Wootenly school, three weeks ago discovered that her eyesight was failing. She had great difficulty in seeing her pupils. She submitted her physician, who could not find any cause for her trouble.

She was referred to New York to consult an eye specialist. He told her he could not find any fault with her eyes.

He gave as an excuse that he could not get the money, and promised the doctor if he was discharged he would pay all obligations.

DYMATTO MAY NOT SURVIVE.

Its Assailant, Simon Rund, Alleges Self-Defense.

Simon Rund was held in the Ave. of Justice Court, Williamsburg, to-day, to await the result of the injuries of Tony Bryant, who is now in the Eastern District Hospital, in a very critical condition.

Rund is a tall and powerful-looking Italian, while Dymatto is fifty-three years old and feeble. About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the two men met in the saloon of Tony Innamo, at Washington street and Utica avenue.

Rund had ordered some beer and after drinking it told his victim that he ought to be ashamed of himself, and then the two men began to fight. And then Rund started to run away, whereupon Rund picked up an umbrella and knocked out the old man's left eye.

Rund ran away and was arrested by Officer Conner, who was one of a number of policemen detailed to cut off his clothes to find him. When Rund was taken into custody he said he had acted in self-defense, for Dymatto was preparing to stab him with a knife when he picked up the umbrella. This story, however, is emphatically denied by Innamo.
